Richard J. Hughes, Catholic Charities, Diocese of Trenton Humanitarian Award

Marianne Earle

Marianne Earle has long worked to improve her community of Freehold. She's a charter member of the Freehold Center Partnership, which improves the downtown district, and now is running for mayor. She was the longtime PTA president at St. Rose of Lima, where her children went to school and where she attends church and belongs to the handbell choir. Besides supporting Catholic Charities, Marianne is a dame in the Order of Malta and serves on the board of Collier Youth Services. She and her late husband Walter co-founded the Earle Companies, a construction business, in 1968. She has seven children and 28 grandchildren.

Client Achievement Award

Jordan

Jordan had a tough start in life, dropping out of school in ninth grade and having a baby at 17. By 23, she was a single mother of three facing homelessness. So she reached out to Catholic Charities' Linkages program, which offers emergency transitional housing and wraparound services in Tinton Falls to help people overcome the hardships that led to homelessness. For Jordan, Linkages was a safe, stable home base while she pursued a general-equivalency degree and employment. After leaving Linkages, she got her driver's license, became a certified nursing assistant, got a job in January 2018.

Corporate Citizen of the Year

The Bank of Princeton

At The Bank of Princeton, philanthropy is a core value. Since its founding in 2007, the bank has grown to a $1.3 billion company with 150 employees at 14 branches from Philadelphia to New Brunswick. With acquisitions and new construction under way, the bank will launch seven new branches by year's end. As the business has grown, so has its commitment to charitable giving, President and CEO Edward J. Dietzler said. The bank gave to more than 150 community groups and charities – from food pantries to arts and educational services – last year alone. Since 2008, the bank has generously supported Catholic Charities annually.

*Light of Hope Award,
Burlington County*

Jesse DeSanto

Delanco Police Chief Jesse DeSanto has financially supported Catholic Charities for nearly a decade. Before becoming chief in 2012, he served as the department's domestic violence liaison and worked closely with Catholic Charities, Diocese of Trenton's Providence House Domestic Violence Services in Burlington County. He helped families in domestic violence crisis. He also has helped link people to shelter and other basic-need services through our Community Services programs. His charitable instincts were instilled during childhood by his philanthropic parents, he said, adding that he was "surprised but grateful" for being honored as a Light of Hope.

*Light of Hope Award,
Monmouth County*

Stanley Koreyva Jr.

Stanley Koreyva Jr. has served on Catholic Charities' Board of Trustees since 2015. He also has generously donated for many years. Stanley is president and chief operating officer of The PRC Group, a construction, development, and property-management firm based in Long Branch, a position he took in 2018 after serving for many years as chief operating officer and then president of Amboy Bank. He credits his Catholic upbringing, as well as his family's longtime ties to Trenton, to instilling his commitment to community service. He and his wife Gayle live in Sea Girt, where they are parishioners of St. Mark's Catholic Church.

*Light of Hope Award,

Frank Taylor served on Catholic Charities' Board of Trustees for nine years

Frank also donates to the New Jersey Amateur Basketball Club and coached a Trenton team for years. He and wife Nancy have four children and recently relocated to Florida. "You hear that saying: 'Give a man a fish and you feed him one day, but teach him to fish, and you feed him for a lifetime.' Catholic Charities does both," he said.

*Light of Hope Award,
Ocean County*

Joseph Leone Introna

In 2009, he created the Joe Leone's L'Aquila Earthquake Relief Fund to rebuild an orphanage destroyed by an earthquake. He continues fundraising to support other disaster recovery efforts in Italy.
